

MALE PROFESSORS' AND LECTURERS' COMMITMENT TO GENDER EQUALITY AT SWISS UNIVERSITIES AND ETHS

Conference – May 2, 2024, from 10:15 am to 12:00 pm

UniNE, Av. du Premier-Mars 26, room D59

The event is aimed at all members of the University

What do men actually have to do with gender equality? A lot, because leaders are crucial when it comes to change. In the «Leaders for Equality»- survey, conducted at all Swiss universities and ETHs, male professors and lecturers were asked about their commitment to gender equality issues. The female professors and lecturers were asked how they in turn rated the commitment of their male colleagues.

At this event Prof. Julia Nentwich from University of St Gallen, one of the authors of the study, will present the results. You will have the opportunity to discuss the results of the study and exchange ideas with your peers on how to develop your commitment to equality.

Photo : © Hannes Thalman

Julia Nentwich, Associate Professor, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland

Julia Nentwich is an Associate Professor in Psychology at the University of St. Gallen, Switzerland, where she teaches psychology and critical thinking. In her research, she is interested in social and discursive practices of doing gender and diversity, organizational change, change agency and resistance. With the action research project "Leaders for Equality" she is engaged in researching men supporting gender equality. She has published widely on these topics, both in English and German. She holds a PhD in psychology from the University of Tübingen, Germany.